“Manchester is buzzing with excitement and many new and local bands are getting noticed due to this buzz. One such band is Agent 47 who have released their self-financed debut EP Who's That? in April of this year to local acclaim. Stating Deftones, Tool and Corrosion of Conformity as influences, the three tracks on the EP certainly realise the potential that this band have. They share a love of pop-culture, movies, comics, music, video games and technology which are very much explored in the music (“One Bad Day” being based on Alan Moore’s The Killing Joke graphic novel) from time to time. This is a band where anything is on the table”stylistically.” - Moshville Times on the release of “Who’s That?”

“The party warms up nicely during opening act Agent 47’s pulsating set. Songs such as Don’t Waste Your Breath, Suffer and Oblivion are groove-laden slabs of alt rock featuring elongated distorted guitar licks alongside catchy rock riffs. In places, the sound is reminiscent of Faith No More in its willingness to incorporate experimentation while maintaining a focus on accessible memorable rock songs.” - getintothisco.uk on supporting “4GEN7 (agent 47) are another band well known locally. A decent set with some good groovy songs and riffs, punctuated with some good crowd interaction and a few wall of deaths. I had a feeling that they might buck a notable trend of later bands capturing the crowd vote and winning it from the second slot.” - Ghost Cult Mag M2TM Burnley 2019.
